HUNDREDS of young people flocked to the launch of this year's Discover Young Hackney (DYH) festival.

Established performers at the Hackney Empire were joined by gifted hopefuls who took part in an X Factor style talent contest to open the annual festival. Singer Holly Watson-Abell had never performed in a competition before – but stole the show with her winning turn. DYH continues until the end of February, offering a wide range of arts and cultural activities for young people in Hackney aged 13 to 19. For more info & pictures see pages 8&9.

MAKING IT COUNT

By
Gareth Greene

RESIDENTS are being urged to fill in their census forms and help Hackney get all the Government money it is entitled to for vital services.

The census is a count of an area's population, co-ordinated by the Office for National Statistics (ONS) every ten years. The data is used to calculate how much funding each place should receive for health, education, and policing, as well as council services. The more accurate the count, the fairer the funding.

At the last census in 2001, over 25 per cent of households in Hackney didn't return their questionnaire, which meant the borough potentially lost out on hundreds of millions of pounds. This time, it is hoped every household will return their form.

Jules Pipe, Mayor of Hackney, said: "It's essential that every household takes the time to fill in the census. The more households that do it; the more money we will get for local services.

"This year's census will be one of the most important ever. The Council is facing more than £80million in Government spending cuts over the next four years; and we need to ensure the Government has an accurate understanding of the borough's population and its needs, so this is reflected in how much money we receive for vital services.

"The census is also critical to the Council and its partners in deciding how to plan and deliver services such as transport, adult social care, healthcare and education."

Census forms will be delivered during March. The questions cover areas like work, health, ethnic background and languages spoken. The name of everyone who lives in a household on 27 March needs to be written on the form, as does anyone who is visiting overnight on that date. Census information is confidential and only used to produce data on numbers of people and the service need of areas. Support to fill in the form is available in 58 languages, and for people with sight and hearing difficulties.

Hackney's Reclaiming Social Work programme has been highlighted as leading the way by a national child protection report

By
Gracia Douglas

THE Council's Reclaiming Social Work programme has been hailed as leading a new approach to child protection.

Professor Eileen Munro's interim report for the Government is the second in her three-part study of the country's child protection system.

It identifies where reform is needed, and focuses on helping children, rather than on the regulations, inspections and procedures which some believe have thrown the system out of balance.

To encourage change, Professor Munro wants to test out how to give frontline social workers greater autonomy so they can better exercise their professional judgment.

She said: "Child protection is not an easy job. I now need to work with professionals to develop more precisely how my ideas will work in practice. Ultimately this is about helping them to do their job better, more confidently, and with more support so that children are protected more successfully."

"We are looking to see whether the approach developed in Hackney may positively affect national practice"

To achieve this, ministers are considering granting Hackney – along with four other authorities whose success was also highlighted in the report – the independence to spend more time working with families. This trial would last beyond the period of the Munro Review, and the Department for Education would consider evidence gathered during this time when it responds to the professor's final report.

Cllr Rita Krishna, Cabinet Member for Children's Services, said: "Hackney initiated Reclaiming Social Work because we knew we could do better for children and families by working differently."

"We are glad that Professor Munro and others have recognised the potential of this work and are looking to see whether the approach developed in Hackney may positively affect national practice."

What is Reclaiming Social Work?

In 2008, the Council radically remodelled its children's social care system, offering a fresh approach for staff, as well as the families they work with. Hackney created small teams of staff that work under the leadership of a consultant social worker. This leader takes responsibility for work within the unit and makes key decisions, which means experienced senior social workers can spend more time working directly with families and less time on administrative tasks. Independent evaluation has shown that as a result, there are now lower rates of children becoming the subject of a Child Protection Plan more than once, and fewer looked-after children in the borough. There has also been an overall saving in the Council's children's social care costs of 4.97 per cent, due to a reduction of the number of children needing to go into care; and a 55 per cent reduction in staff days lost to sickness; improved placement stability; and very low numbers of children in residential care.

The new primary school, officially opened this month, cost £9million

How green is my school

The new Berger Primary School building in South Hackney is one of the most environmentally friendly in the country

By
Kate Gibney

One of the country's most eco-friendly schools was opened in Hackney this month.

Pupils at Berger Primary School proudly showed off the new building in Anderson Road, E9, at its official opening on 17 February by Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe.

Guests were treated to performances from the school choir, ballet and dance club and African music.

The new building, which was completed last April, features toilets that use recycled rainwater; 180m<sup>2</sup> of solar panels; and a sedum green roof on which you can grow plants. Architects Studio E have maximised the natural light in the building, so electricity use is kept to a minimum, and better airflow throughout the school has cancelled out the need for air conditioning.

The school has been awarded an excellent rating from BREEAM – the environmental assessment method used by buildings experts, which makes it one of the most eco-friendly schools in Britain.

Head Teacher, Karen

Coulthard, said: "This is a brilliant building, full of light and air and with the message of sustainability running right through it. I'm delighted that our children can learn in such an inspiring environment. The feedback from children and parents has been fantastic."

The £9million project was managed by The Learning Trust, on behalf of the Council and funded jointly by the Council and the school.

Alan Wood, Chief Executive of The Learning Trust, said: "Hackney is now home to some of the most impressive school buildings in the country and Berger Primary School is no exception. It demonstrates the benefits to pupils of seeing a construction through from the first architectural drawing to the final lick of paint."

Cllr Rita Krishna, Cabinet Member for Children's Services, said: "Berger Primary School's new building is a wonderful example of involvement from and long term benefits for pupils in Hackney, and is a welcome addition to the borough's growing number of impressive, sustainable school buildings."

Message from the Mayor

No front line cuts

As I've said before in this column, I'm determined the Council budget we are about to set will not make front line cuts to the services the Council provides to residents – there will be no raising of eligibility criteria for home care for the elderly, there'll be no library closures, no closure of children's centres, no reduction in the cleanliness of our streets.

When setting the Council's budget, the focus is often on the several millions of new expenditure that will begin in the new financial year. What often is overlooked is the more than £1 billion that is spent on services and facilities throughout the year. From street-cleaning to social care, from libraries to leisure centres, new ways of using this money have been adopted over the past eight years to improve and expand front line services. This has delivered better results for the borough, from investing in important services, such as improvements in our green spaces which has won green flags for 12 of our parks, through to improving vital services, such as Adult Social Care, consistently achieving some of the highest inspection ratings possible.

Thinking about the breadth of services for Hackney residents serves as a stark reminder to everyone, if it should be needed, of the importance of sustaining services in the face of central Government grant reductions. That is why in this year's budget the first call on resources generated by efficiency savings is to maintain those front line services.

One of the cuts in national grant for the wider borough was to Team Hackney – the local strategic partnership that funded many projects that were run alongside Council, health and education services. As part of this budget, we have proposed the Council should step in with funding to ensure that vital work with young people, increasing community safety and reducing domestic violence should continue.

Our decision to freeze Council Tax again will be taken in a very different situation to that of the last five years, where our aim was to invest in and improve services whilst ensuring better value for money for taxpayers. Due to the Government's overall grant reductions, a Council Tax increase had to be considered, but we are very mindful of the continued challenges faced by residents in managing the economic downturn. Also, our grant settlement contains £1.8million that would be taken back by Government if Council Tax were to be raised by a penny.

It is not possible for Hackney to escape the impact of the national spending review. This budget, however, is evidence of the Council's determination and commitment to shielding residents from the national reduction in funding for our public services.

Changing opinions

By

POWERFUL songs and inspirational speakers helped make Stoke Newington School's Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender (LGBT) History Month celebration a memorable event.

Hosting the LGBT Spring Concert, the N16 school ramped up its usual history month programme with pop covers by students and guest performers.

Around 100 attendees heard 'I Love Rock and Roll' and 'Walking On Sunshine', which were among the songs adapted by pupils for the 17 February event, while tunes by jazz singer Estelle Kokot and the London Gay Men's Choir wrapped up the night.

Claire Harvey, a sitting volleyball player set to compete in London 2012, figured as one speaker describing the difficulties facing LGBT people forced to hide their sexuality.

Throughout February, pupils have been involved in activities highlighting LGBT History Month, ranging from creating themed keyrings to debating LGBT issues in English lessons. Elly Barnes, LGBT coordinator at the school, organised the concert. She said: "During the day we also had a school march around Clissold Park for equal rights. We walked past one man walking his dog and he started to cry – he was part of the Gay Liberation Front in the 1970s and thought he'd never see the day when children marched for gay rights."

Of the concert, she said: "The kids loved it, got a chance to perform and talk about how they really feel. Most students know homophobia is wrong and find it difficult to understand, especially as being gay wasn't illegal in their, or even my, lifetime."

She added that ignorance causes homophobia, but with education and positive role models even the most deep-rooted opinions can change.

News in brief

Some of London's first batch of greeters

Want to show off your borough?

THE Council is recruiting volunteers to show small groups of visitors to the borough the places they know and love. Based on New York City's programme, the Big Apple Greeters, The London Greeters will operate in all 2012 host boroughs. Volunteers are needed now in preparation for the thousands of visitors who will be passing through Hackney at Games-time. Greeters will devise their own free tours, and will be needed for a minimum of two hours a month for at least one year. Applicants must be Hackney residents, aged 18-plus. They will need to have a friendly and welcoming manner; be a confident public speaker; and knowledgeable about their area.

'Ave a Fairtrade banana

FAIRTRADE Fortnight is nearly here and residents are encouraged to 'show off your label' from 28 February to 13 March. Events kick off with a taster session on 1 March at Hackney Central Library, from 10.30am-12noon, where visitors can browse everything Fairtrade, from the familiar coffee, chocolate and bananas, to sheets and clothes.

People who work with farmers to source Fairtrade products from overseas will come together at a forum at Hackney Town Hall on 5 March, from 12.30-2pm.

Also attending will be a celebrity resident who is well-known to television viewers, but less so for their interest in Fairtrade.

For info about both events, call: 020 8356 4079; e-mail: dinah-mary.allotey@hackney.gov.uk or visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/greenerliving-fairtrade

UK voting referendum

HOUSEHOLDS in Hackney are being asked to make sure everyone who is eligible to vote is on the electoral register in time for a referendum on the UK voting system.

The referendum will decide whether the first-past-the-post system for electing MPs should be replaced with the alternative vote. It takes place on 5 May and you must be registered if you wish to vote.

Every household will receive a confirmation form by post. If the information is correct, no action is needed. If the information is wrong, or names are missing, make the changes and return the form.

If you are on the register, you can apply for an absent vote – to vote by post or nominate someone to vote for you – but the application must be received by the Council at least 11 days before polling day. For a form call: 020 8356 3000; or download one at: www.hackney.gov.uk/elections-voting

Lovely landmarks

By
Susie Haywood

Is there an eye-catching building in the borough that you think should be celebrated as a Hackney landmark?

An innovative project that aims to promote and protect local buildings is asking residents to nominate architecture which they feel is significant.

The Council will consider all buildings suggested as part of the 'Love Local Landmarks' scheme for inclusion on the borough's list, which lets people know what buildings are of value to the area and gives them a special status. These buildings receive particular care and consideration when the Council has to make decisions that affect their future.

The Local List recognises buildings that are not included on the national register. Hackney's has not been reviewed since 1991, and there are known to be a large number of significant 20th century buildings in the borough that are not included.

Love Local Landmarks – part-funded by English Heritage and Discover Hackney – is being co-ordinated by the Hackney Society in partnership with the Council. Chair of the Hackney Society, Kevin Moore, said: "I would encourage anyone who wants to nominate a favourite building to do so. I am sure there will be many new additions to Hackney's Local List from the nominations we receive."

Cllr Guy Nicholson, Cabinet Member for Regeneration and 2012

Nominations must be at least one of the following

- Of historical interest – has an association with well-known personality or event, or demonstrates Hackney's history
- Of architectural interest – a good example of a particular style or period or designed by a well-known architect
- Of environmental significance – makes a special contribution to the environment of a street or locality
- Of aesthetic or artistic merit – this could include a building, mural or shop sign that 'arrests the eye'

Olympic and Paralympic Games, added: "Hackney has many well-designed and eye-catching buildings. This project provides a unique chance for people to take part in selecting and protecting some of the borough's landmarks."

Nominations are open until 29 April. New buildings added to the Local List will be included in a survey being carried out by volunteers from the Hackney Society, as part of Love Local Landmarks. Data – including a photo of each building and a description of its condition – will be added to an online catalogue and submitted to the English Heritage's Historic Environment Record.

FROM a mature student who turned his life around, to a team that brought a taste of London 2012 to a local school, Hackney Community College (HCC) celebrated a crop of high achievers at its annual Student Awards.

Hackney-born actor Colin McFarlane – of ‘The Dark Knight’, ‘Torchwood’ and ‘The Fast Show’ – compered the evening and congratulated winners, who received gongs inspired by the Olympic and Paralympic values of: excellence; respect;

Michael Bines, winner of the courage award at work on the evening’s canapes; and (right) actor Colin McFarlane and college Principal Ian Ashman courage; inspiration; friendship; equality; and determination. Awards were also presented by Speaker of Hackney, Cllr Sally Mulready.

Mature student, Michael Bines, 43, left school without qualifications. A life of gangs and petty crime in his youth ended in imprisonment. Having spent a few years as a labourer to ‘make ends meet’, he enrolled on the Food Preparation and Cooking course at the Hoxton college.

“I’d been cooking since I was about 13 and was always told I could do it well. After a period of not really doing anything, I thought I could use this skill, get into work and maybe start my own business,” he said.

Now a college graduate and looking for more vocational experience, he received an ‘act of courage’ award.

The inspiration to others award was won by Melrose Wright, who at 16 is the college’s youngest ever Health and Social Care BTEC diploma student, and is ‘admired

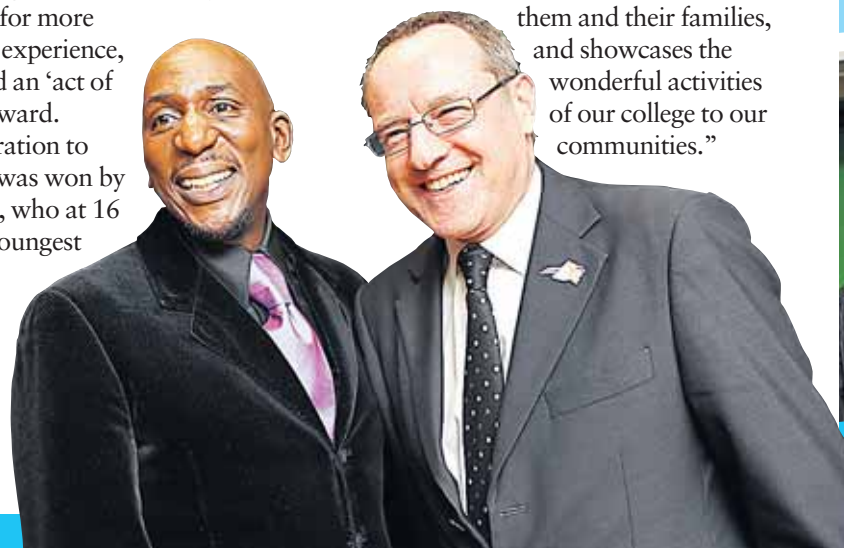

Adam Hawkins was awarded for vocational achievement. He is in his second year of a BTEC National Diploma in Media Production by all’. Hospitality and catering students Bonnitta Beasley, Phillip Harrison and Tiago Gomes, won the teamwork award for representing the college during the Vancouver 2010 Winter Olympics. They volunteered to work alongside new Canadian friends, serving food during the Games.

Other winners were Ricardo Goncalves, young learners; Selma Renk, outstanding progress; John Cocker and Nick Purdue, student most likely to succeed in the workplace; Adam Hawkins, vocational achievement; Gary Delamere, promoting equality and diversity; Eulalia Gene Fleix, effort and determination; Salma Begum, academic achievement; and Barry Ison, learner voice award.

Principal Ian Ashman said: “It gives me great pleasure to play a part in this event, which is a highlight of our college year. Our annual awards evening recognises our students’ great achievements, both for them and their families, and showcases the wonderful activities of our college to our communities.”

BTEC Level 3 diploma in sport students Charly Lukongo Djuma, Sloane Quashie Lee, Shaun Antonio Henry and Ali Demircan received the contribution to the community award on behalf of their group after organising an Olympic day for local primary school pupils

Salma Begum, winner of the academic achievement award, has a place at London’s City University to study psychology

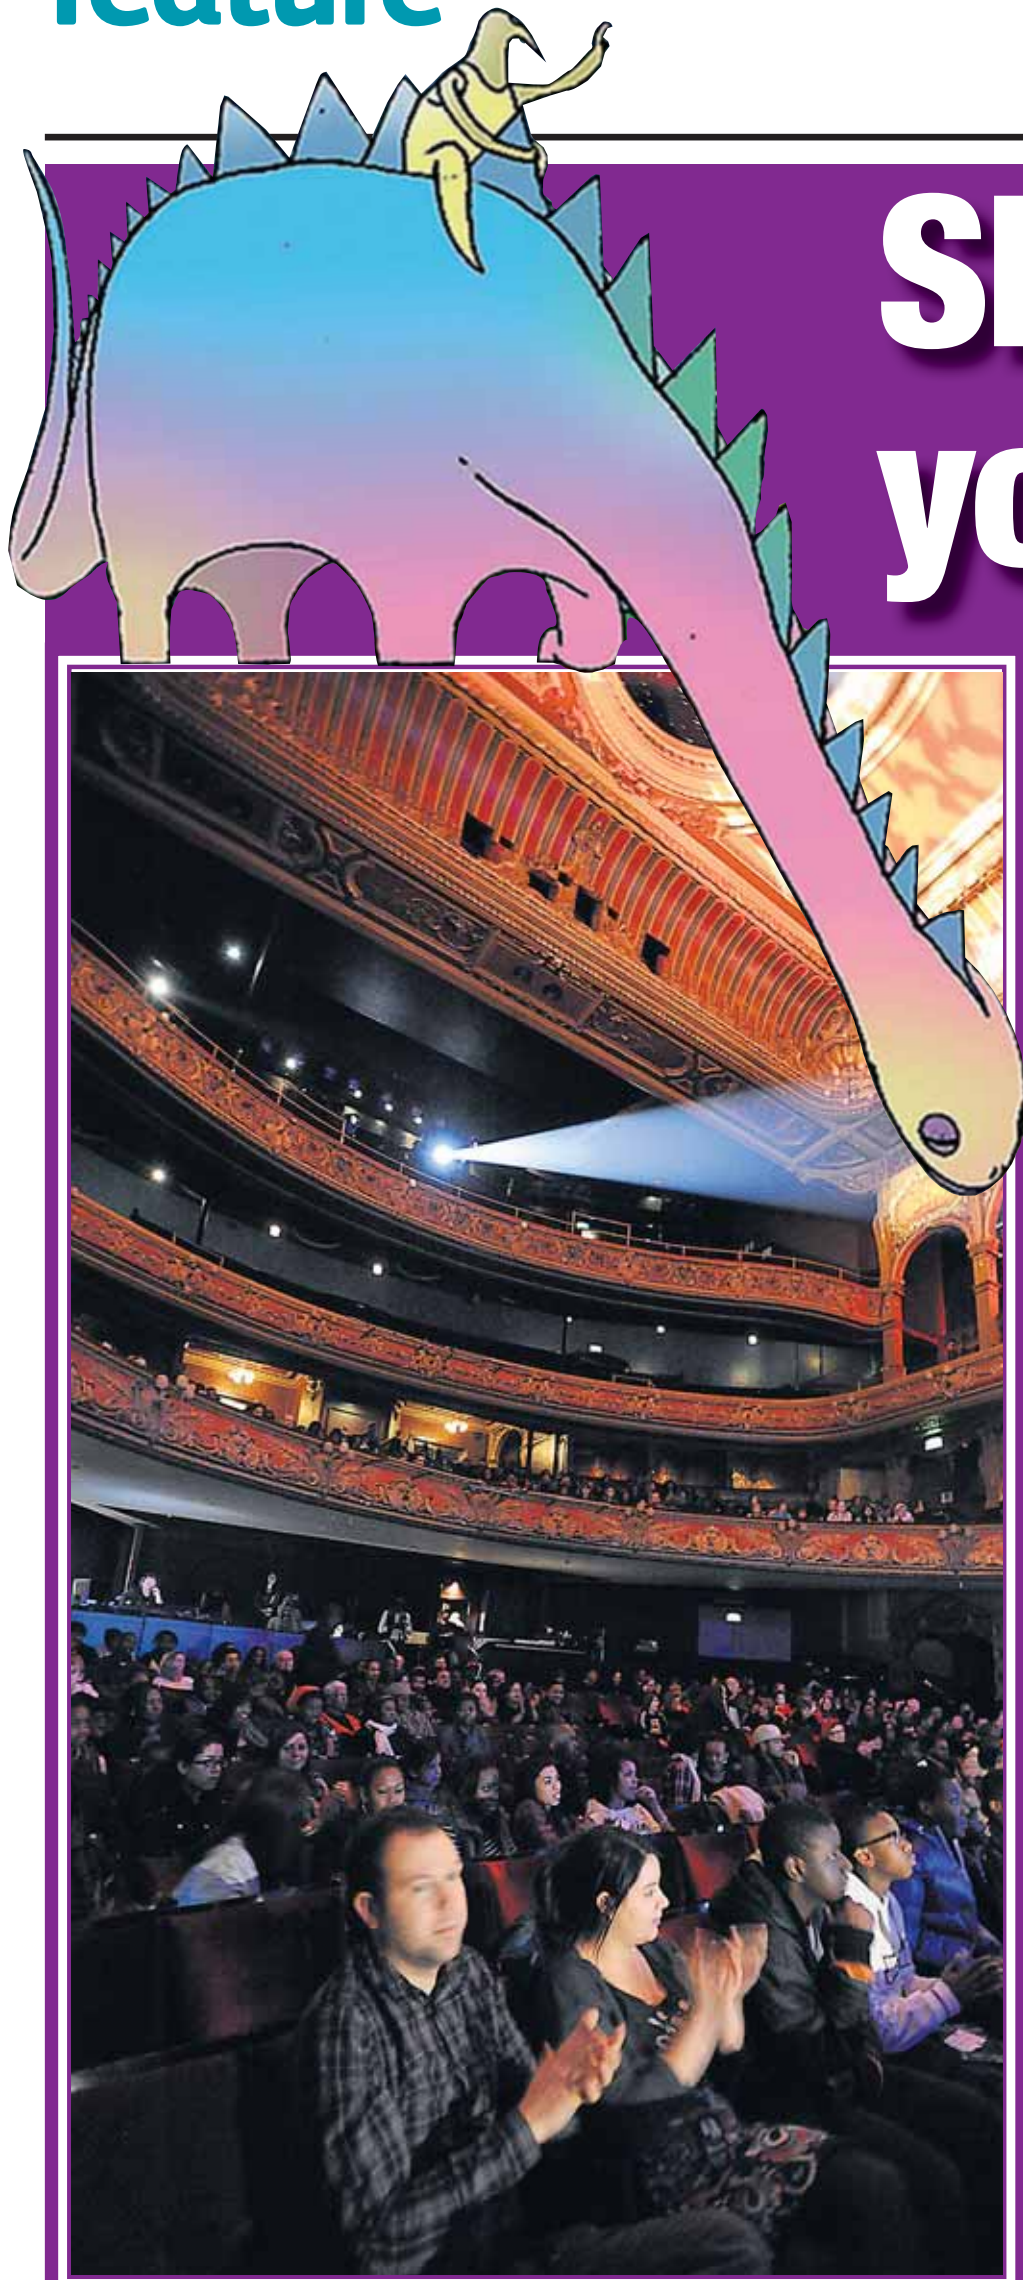

Eulalia Gene Fleix, winner of the effort & determination award, with partner Keith and child Malachia. She studied through her pregnancy and took just a week off after the birth

Tiago Gomes, Bonnitta Beasley and Phillip Harrison were awarded the teamwork award for their work catering the Vancouver 2010 Winter Olympics

Showcasing young talent

The Council's fifth Discover Young Hackney Festival got under way with a chance for performers to shine on stage at the Hackney Empire

By
Nicola Quinn

A SINGER giving her first competitive performance stole the show at the launch of the Discover Young Hackney (DYH) festival on 4 February.

Holly Watson-Abell, 13, impressed a crowd of hundreds at the 'I'm In' talent contest with her version of Taylor Swift's 'Fairytale'. Her act was judged the best of the night, earning her a scholarship to London 'fame' school X7eaven Academy.

Holly said: "I was really nervous, but it felt great being on stage. I've only ever performed with my drama club. It's amazing to win, I'm so happy. Now I'd like to go on to be a world-renowned super star and win a MOBO award."

Radio and TV presenter Kat B hosted the evening, which also saw performances from established acts including solo singers Chantelle Nandi, and Miles Davies – who won the first 'I'm In' talent contest; Circus Space; and X7eaven Academy, who performed an anti-bullying dance and drama piece. The Hackney Empire Gospel Choir led by former Holby City star Sharon D Clarke and Wacky Rymel, also took to the stage.

The other finalists – selected at auditions in January – were soloists

Liam (Ritz) O'Brien, and Robyn Louise Regan; duet Latisha Antoine and Aimee Riley; and group Trinity, featuring Ruth Sesay, Tola Balogun, and Samuella Kwquie.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Community Services, said: "Congratulations to Holly who was a really deserving winner, and I'd also like to say well done to all the acts who made the final. 'I'm In'

has a hard earned reputation for its high standards and I was really impressed by the quality of the acts. I'm delighted that through DYH we can give more young people a chance to get involved in arts and culture projects."

Now in its fifth year, DYH is the Council's month-long programme of free activities for residents aged 13 to 19, making arts and culture more accessible to young people. There's still time to sign up for free sessions and workshops throughout February.

Catering Opportunity in stunning Grade II* listed Clissold House, in the heart of Stoke Newington

The London Borough of Hackney seeks expressions of interest from caterers with turnover in excess of £1million per annum for the operation of a new café in the recently restored Grade II listed Clissold House.

Set in the grounds of Clissold Park, Clissold House provides a stunning setting for this café which the Council is keen to operate with the highest standards. The appointed operator will also manage the Pump House kiosk in Clissold Park and may have the opportunity to cater for functions within the House; the ability to cater for functions and events of 20-200 people will therefore need to be evidenced.

The appointed company will need to demonstrate thorough experience and reference sites the ability to operate other successful café concepts with turnover in excess of £500,000.

The five year lease, which will be awarded following competitive tender, will commence in summer 2011. The appointed company may be required to make a capital contribution towards the café fit out.

Initial expressions of interest should be directed to:

We live in a hearing world

Laraine Callow received an MBE for services to deaf and hearing impaired people earlier this month

By
Marcel Reinard

THE visual nature of signing makes it virtually impossible to learn British Sign Language (BSL) through a book alone, says Deafworks Director Laraine Callow.

"You have a go," she smiles, pointing to an illustration in her new multimedia guide 'Teach Yourself BSL'. I try to copy the drawings for 'Are you deaf?'. "You've just said, 'Hi, my art is that way,'" she laughs.

Laraine has been helping both deaf and hearing people from diverse backgrounds learn about deaf issues – as well as 'knocking the heads together' of the not so receptive – for 40 years, earning the lively Shoreditch resident an MBE in the New Year's honours list.

Born into a family of coal miners, factory workers and part-time boxers in Yorkshire, she lost her hearing a day after being born, when she was given Streptomycin to treat an eye infection.

"Being deaf has never bothered me, but it can be a burden; we live in a hearing world where people don't understand the issues. If you haven't had the experience, it's hard to describe," says the former teacher.

However, she does allude to lonely school holidays as a child. Laraine also encountered barriers when she decided to go into teaching in the 1970s. She says: "It was very hard to get into and they kept trying to think of excuses to not allow me to be a teacher." So was she discriminated against? "It wasn't called that at the time, it wasn't really called anything. Some staff just felt deaf children didn't have the right to grow up and become teachers," she says.

Things improved however, when she started working in education services in London in the 1980s. Laraine speaks warmly of working with lecturers and head teachers in roles that saw her ensure students have signers, interpreters, lip reading help and other facilities needed for their learning. Laraine went on to found social enterprise Deafworks, now based in Shoreditch, in 1989.

The chief concern of its staff – made up of hearing impaired freelancers, with the exception of her hearing daughter and husband – is to make everyday life better for hearing impaired people.

Curriculum Vitae: Laraine Callow

1951	Born Halifax, Yorkshire
1953	Attended Yorkshire School for the deaf
1971-74	Teacher training at Leeds College
1974-89	Teaching in a range of educational establishments
1989	Launches Deafworks
2010	Publishes Teach Yourself BSL
2011	Receives MBE for her services to deaf and hearing impaired people

The organisation's work ranges from helping deaf prisoners to communicate, to running deaf awareness courses for large corporations.

She says: "Deaf people getting promotions is close to my heart. I love getting them to the next level, whatever that is – chief executive or help getting someone their first job."

In 1991, responding to her own experiences as a child. She also launched Playmix a holiday scheme at Coram Fields, WC1, for kids with hearing difficulties.

"Segregation is very unpopular but it isn't really segregation, it's about young deaf people sharing the same experiences, so you become strong. Then you can go out and kick the ass of the world," she says.

Receiving her MBE for services to deaf and hearing impaired people earlier this month, publishing a new

BSL DVD and book, as well as celebrating her 60th birthday, has given Laraine time to reflect. She muses: "It's come at a good time as it's tied up the first two phases of my life: teaching then running a business. I've been thinking of setting up a deaf artist exhibition to celebrate both my birthday and MBE."

"Hackney is a good place to do it with so many galleries popping up and cultural history like the old workshops and Shakespeare theatre."

"I've got another phase to go hopefully but the next will be quite different, I don't have the answer to what that will hold, but I'll still be slapping people around with a wet fish."

THE GREEN GENIE

All your recycling questions answered

Q: My Green Box is sometimes returned to my neighbour. It may sound a bit petty, but I store it in my kitchen and try to keep it really clean. I do always get the right one back in the end, but I was wondering how I could help the recycling crew return my Green Box on their rounds?

A: Many people find it convenient to keep their Green Box next to their kitchen bin, and it's understandable that you'd want it to be clean.

New Green Boxes all have a white panel on them. Use this to write your house or flat number on, so the crew can return it to the correct place. It also helps us monitor who is recycling – as it's compulsory in Hackney to recycle glass, paper and cans.

If you have an older Green Box without the panel, write your address on a sticker, or straight on the box with permanent marker pen.

Around 50 residents turned out to help with tree planting at a community garden near Springfield Park

By
Sarah Menz

AROUND 50 people turned out to get involved in an orchard-planting day near Springfield Park.

The Robin Hood Community Garden in Ferry Spring Lane, E5, was overrun with brambles. Now volunteers are turning it into a welcoming public space with relaxation and learning areas, herbs, bee hives and plants that encourage biodiversity.

The event on 6 February was run by the Robin Hood User Group and the London Orchard Project.

Nine fruit trees were planted including three different varieties of apple, two pear and plum, plus an apricot and sweet cherry.

User group member, Katherine Jackson, said:

"It's about reclaiming the site for the whole of the community, because this was always a public site.

"I'm looking forward to a time when the gate is open all day."

After the planting, budding 'orchard carers' were signed up to take on watering responsibilities over the coming months.

Children stencilled the fruit varieties onto the tree stakes, and also cut out fruit shapes and wrote down their hopes for the orchard. These will be added to a banner being made by pupils at Harrington Hill Primary School.

Broken toaster? Now you can recycle it

TEN new recycling banks have been installed on Hackney's streets to collect broken kettles, hair dryers, phones and other small electrical goods.

The Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment (WEEE) will be collected and sent to a sorting factory in North West London. Items in working condition will be sold through charities and other outlets, with the remainder being recycled at a factory in Kent.

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, visited one of the new banks on 16 February. She said: "Waste electrical items can be very polluting to the environment. Recycling them through the new facilities will help make Hackney greener."

More trees for estates

By Natalie Powell

CHILDREN from Sebright Primary School visited nearby Whiston estate to plant a selection of trees on 8 February.

Hackney Homes' gardeners were helped by 31 pupils to plant pear, apple, oak and lilac trees. They learnt about each tree and had fun getting involved in digging and planting.

Gardener Michael Brawn said: "Days like this really encourage children to build a relationship with their environment and be proud of the green spaces that they use every day."

Teacher James Green added: "It's lovely to see our children getting involved with improving

Sebright pupils Nancy and Tabassum, both six, and Basheer and Tawhid, both five their area, creating more green spaces and developing an appreciation of nature and their environment."

It was part of a wider Hackney Homes scheme to help brighten the borough's estates and enhance the local environment. This year, the organisation – which is responsible for the borough's council housing – aims to plant over 800 trees on its estates.

Are you a Hackney Homes resident and want to get involved in making your estate a better place to live? Come to an Involvement Day on 5 March, from 10am, at the Assembly Rooms, Hackney Town Hall, Mare Street.

Green business

TWO Hackney organisations have been recognised at a London-wide environmental award ceremony.

The Arcola Theatre won both the 'greening the third sector' and 'resource conservation' categories in the City of London Corporation's Sustainable City Awards.

The Dalston institution aims to become the world's first carbon neutral theatre, through its Arcola Energy programme, which covers activities ranging from recycling bottles to using a hydrogen fuel cell to power lighting in the cafe and on stage.

Hackney Community Transport (HCT) was highly commended in the 'sustainable travel and transport' category. The organisation was short listed for its 'caring for the environment programme', which works to reduce the CO2 emissions of its fleet; encourages individuals and voluntary groups to travel together and save fuel; and supports staff in learning how to drive in a fuel-efficient manner.

Lord Smith, Chairman of the Environment Agency, who presented the awards, said: "The innovation seen here tonight is exemplary. However, the challenge we will face over the next decade will be to ensure that this commitment does not wane. Although we have made great strides toward mainstream acceptance of sustainability, this needs to be built upon, not only to protect our environment, but to safeguard future economic growth."

City Academy pupils with Principal, Mark Emmerson, and Chair of Governors, Catherine McGuinness

By
Marcel Reinard

CITY Academy has made 'outstanding progress towards raising standards', according to its first Ofsted report.

Inspectors visited the 18-month-old school and found its Year Eight students, who are currently the oldest pupils, progressing at an above average rate for their age.

This is despite the fact that 'at the beginning of Year Seven, most students enter the academy with standards of attainment which are below average,' according to the report.

It added that 'all students do well, including those from different backgrounds and those entitled to free school meals. Students with special educational needs or disabilities make particularly good progress in English and maths because of early identification of learning needs and effective support'.

Ofsted also recognised the Homerton school's ambition to build on community links with projects like developing an orchard; sports courses for non academy students; and hosting conferences and courses for local groups. The report added students make 'a positive contribution to the local community'.

City Academy Principal, Mark Emmerson, said: "This was the most rigorous inspection I've ever been involved in and we can be absolutely certain that this was a well earned grade. There are so few schools that achieve this outcome at this stage in their development and it is a team effort by staff, students and sponsors that makes the academy outstanding.”

“ There are so few schools that achieve this outcome at this stage in their development and it is a team effort ”

Year Eight pupil, Mariah Darko-Coby, said: "I made progress by setting myself a target to become more focused. My teachers helped by pushing me in lessons and explaining work to me where I was struggling.”

The academy is sponsored by KPMG and the City of London Corporation, and was developed in partnership with The Learning Trust, which runs the borough's education services on behalf of the Council.

News in brief

Big career ambitions?

SIXTH formers who see a future striving at a law firm or making waves in finance have an opportunity to give their CV an early boost as the City of London Corporation opens up its summer trainee programme.

The scheme places Year 13 school leavers in paid apprentice roles at top City firms for up to 13 weeks, providing a brilliant start to a business career. Organisers said interns can gain experience across departments including finance, HR and communications, as well as a salary of up to £400 a week. The scheme also aims to provide young people with the experience to stand out in the future when they apply for graduate roles. Applicants for the City of London Business Traineeship are assessed according to their GCSE grades and selected through an interview and workshop process. Successful applicants are matched with City businesses that interview and then choose trainees.

In 2010, host firms included UBS, Royal Bank of Canada, Bloomberg, Allen & Overy, and the Bank of England. Applications close in May, with roles typically running between July and September.

To apply visit: www.cityoflondon.gov.uk/cbt

Last chance for 2012 jobs

THE official scheme offering school and college leavers Olympic and Paralympic Games jobs closes at the end of February.

'Get Ahead' gives young people who have completed, or are set to complete, their A-levels or equivalent studies, the chance to learn new skills and gain work experience at the world's biggest sporting event. This is the fourth and final round of applications before London 2012.

Chosen recruits will join the workforce this August to take up permanent roles in sectors such as technology, Games services and Games operations.

The scheme is run by the London Organising Committee of the Olympic and Paralympic Games, and the roles last until the end of the 2012 event.

The scheme offers a salary and the chance to study with a local college to gain an NVQ qualification.

Some of Hackney's Legacy Champions

Putting some energy into 2012 legacy

HACKNEY Community College (HCC) and BSix sixth form college have teamed up with youth charity Envision and a London 2012 partner to help develop post Games community projects.

The Legacy Champions – young ambassadors bridging the gap between their college and Games organisers – will get professional help from 30 mentors from Envision and project funder EDF Energy to help them work on social action schemes. An HCC event on 11 February saw students discuss some of their hopes, issues and ideas for their communities.

Envision will work with students for six months on how to best run their projects, and offer advice on skills from working with partners, to fundraising and applying for grants. Similar projects are pencilled to run for the next three years.

Benjamin Oladunjoye, a student at BSix, said: "I feel very excited to be involved in such a good project. I am looking forward to putting the work into creating a project I know I am responsible for and seeing the end result."

Food Glorious Food

Until 25 Apr, V&A Museum of Childhood, Cambridge Heath Road, E2 9PA

HOW we grow, prepare and eat food is explored in a new interactive exhibition at V&A Museum of Childhood.

Looking at cuisine in UK culture, 'Food Glorious Food' draws on the British Library's oral archive to look at what has gone from farms, to shopping trolleys, and onto our plates over the past 50 years. From the influence of rationing and international flavours reaching British shores, to present-day crusades against fast food, this display reflects on how the nation's changing relationship with food mirrors the concerns of the age.

Cooks of all ages can enjoy the eclectic displays of labour-saving gadgets, historic culinary devices, unusual recipes and archived films, before delving into a larder, stocked with stories and nostalgia.

Alice's New Adventures in Wonderland

1-6 Mar, 7.30pm, The Courtyard, 40 Pitfield Street, N1 6EU

EXTENDING Lewis Carroll's 19th century masterpiece, Alice's New Adventures in Wonderland plunges one of children's literature's most recognised heroines into a new tale.

Alice, now 14-years-old, returns to the peculiar underground world on discovering the Queen of Hearts' plot to ban her from Wonderland. Falling down the rabbit hole once more, the young adventuress will have to save an imprisoned Mad Hatter, beat the Queen in her own maze, and attend another nonsensical tea party.

Old friends like the Cheshire Cat and White Rabbit return, while new ones are added in this journey of self-discovery.

This family show aims to emulate some of Carroll's magic with jokes, rhymes, fun and character, while throwing in a few moral messages about openness and affability. Sisters Cindy and Sheila Rhyme star as Alice and the Queen of Hearts in this The Courtyard production.

Trading Roots

6 March, Hackney Empire, 291 Mare St, E8 1EJ

AN upcoming ambitious concert will explore the spice trade through a musical odyssey at the Hackney Empire. Tracing the path of merchants and travellers, 'Trading Roots' maps centuries of bartering; starting with ancient nomadic traders and progressing right up to the globalised world of today. Nearly 100 classical, jazz and world musicians from Grand Union Orchestra, BBC CO Fusion Group and the BBC

Orchestra are to gather at the theatre to celebrate these migrations through continents and ages. Indian and Chinese classical virtuosos mingle with African rhythms and orchestral strings as four sublime singers paint revealing pictures of the rise and fall of empires and trading routes by sea and land. For more info, call 020 8985 2424; or visit www.hackneyempire.co.uk

DO you want to learn how to take great pictures or share your camera skills with others?

The Hackney Young Photographers (HYP) training programme's most recent event was a chance for budding snappers to learn about making the most of their shots.

A session on Photoshop retouching with The Design Surgery on 27 January saw young people get to grips with the programme. The next event is a full day introduction to photography on 24 February at Space Studios led by HYP. No experience is necessary.

Then on 10 March there is a portfolio and careers workshop.

HYP are a group of shutterbugs keen to improve, learn and share camera skills. With free training through January, February and March and an exhibition planned, everyone's invited to join in.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Finding the new Arcola

OUR challenge?

To find the new Arcola Theatre, record the journey and share it on the YH World website.

Assets: four YH journalists, Jenkins, Michele (me!), Alana and Ophelia; a Flip camera; and a couple of hours.

The theatre recently moved from Arcola Street to Ashwin Street, right next to Dalston Junction Station.

Here's the skinny: whatever you think of a traditional theatre, this is the opposite. It's edgier than your usual theatre which makes it all worth the experience. With their eco-friendly attitude and old-fashioned feel, you'll walk in and feel like you've just jumped back 100 years.

So what's on? Currently rehearsing in Studio Two is 'Change', a performance that aims to give a voice, through actors, to real people who are already living in an environment affected by climate change.

Performances start at 7.30pm and run from 22-26 February. The theatre offers a 'pay what you can' show every Tuesday, selling limited tickets for any price, high or low. This way, those of you on a tight budget can still enjoy the theatre for a smaller fee. Another special allows people under 26 to come see a performance for free.

Watch our journey at: www.yhworld.co.uk/arcola\_theatre; for Arcola info visit: www.arcolatheatre.com

Operation: get me a job

"I have begun my research on what I want and need to do next, which ironically, is to do more research."

"Coming from a print journalism background, I have been published in The Guardian, The Observer, The Voice and The Times Education Supplement."

"While I have focused my time on trying to establish myself as a writer, I am taking the step of changing my career direction after I leave university in May. Why? In 2009, I caught a lucky break when an article I wrote was spotted by a Channel 4 researcher working on a Dispatches documentary. I was invited to join the team as a junior researcher and fell in love with TV production."

"So, I'm searching for a job as a junior researcher, production assistant, scripting assistant, or anything that can get my foot in the industry door – but it needs to have good prospects and that all-important salary."

"So my first steps are to search for detailed info on the roles and how to get them; and contact people already doing the jobs to get first-hand help."

Hackney girl Akilah Russell, 22, has a good CV, a degree nearly complete, and she's had her name in print. YH World is following her race to find a job in TV – she has set herself a deadline of 30 May

Revellers at last year's Headway dance marathon

By
Marcel Reinard

LOCAL charity Headway East London is hoping to set a new record for the number of people taking part in its third annual dance marathon.

This year's event at Rich Mix on Bethnal Green Road will raise money to support people affected by brain injury.

The epic annual dance-off aims to attract people across the community to learn new dance styles

“ This year we hope to set a new record in the number of participants and funds raised ”

and hear live music. Bollywood Dance London, Swing Patrol, The Funk Soul Brothers, The Craven Braves, and a hoedown dance group are all penned to perform at the 26 February event.

Dancers of all abilities are welcome to attend the eight hour event, the Kingsland Road charity emphasised. Organiser Sandra Ma said: “This year we hope to set a new record in the number of participants and funds raised. There will be a raffle, auction prizes, cake sale – a true community event.

“We really need support from everyone in the community – whether they have been affected by brain injury or just love dancing. All money raised will go towards Headway House – the only brain injury-specific centre in inner London supporting all people affected by brain injury.”

The previous two endurance dance challenges raised £25,000 for Headway East London.

The best thing for pregnant women

NHS City and Hackney is encouraging women who think they might be pregnant to get early advice from a healthcare professional.

The Department of Health recommends contacting a health professional within the first 12 weeks of pregnancy; yet, around 25 per cent of women in the borough don't do this.

Reasons cited include a lack of knowledge about options; not wanting anyone to know about the pregnancy; or an assumption of already knowing what to do, having had a baby before.

Through early bookings with GPs or midwives, women can receive confidential advice, antenatal care, stop smoking and drinking support and information.

News in brief

Kick the habit with free nicotine patches and gum

Free patches and gum

SMOKERS eager to kick the habit can pick up free nicotine patches and gum across Hackney pharmacies until the end of February.

By signing up to the free NHS stop smoking service would-be quitters will be given the free medication for up to 12 weeks as well as access to a support counselling service.

Research by NHS City and Hackney found the price of quitting medication was a barrier for some smokers. Last year, around 500 residents quit following a similar promotion by the health trust.

The 41 pharmacies that offer Stop Smoking services in Hackney can be easily identified by a distinctive 'QUIT HERE' green dot.

For the list of local pharmacies and more info visit: www.smokefreecityandhackney.nhs.uk

Cancer patients' survey

THE results of a national survey of cancer patients' experiences, including those at Homerton hospital, have been published by the Department of Health. Homerton was among the top 20 per cent of trusts across England for giving patients their first appointment within four weeks of referral.

The hospital was also in the top 20 per cent of trusts for explaining test results, allowing patients to bring a friend to the hospital, and for showing sensitivity when communicating news of the disease.

However, the survey also pointed to areas where patients were not satisfied including pain control, time spent with a doctor, and the written information received.

Homerton said it has already begun to review the findings and is looking at how improvements can be made.

Around 39 per cent of Homerton cancer patients chose to respond to questions about their experience.

This national report provides insights into the care experienced by cancer patients across the country who were treated as day cases or inpatients during the first three months of 2010.

DID YOU KNOW?

Hackney Archives has temporarily closed to the public in order to prepare for the move to its new home

hackneyhistory

On the move

Clockwise from above: Rose Lipman Library shortly after it opened in 1975; postcard showing De Beauvoir Road in about 1912; Some of the Archives' volumes of local newspapers; extract from the 1831 Starling map; an artist's impression of the new library and archive

By Elizabeth Green, Access & Outreach Officer & Libby Adams, Principal Archivist

THE London Borough of Hackney was formed in 1965 from the three former metropolitan boroughs of Hackney, Shoreditch and Stoke Newington – and each brought its own history collection.

Gradually these were gathered together into one borough-wide collection, The Hackney Archives.

The service has been based at 43 De Beauvoir Road, N1, since 1975, when it moved into the Rose Lipman Library, which was named after a long-serving Hackney councillor, who died in January 1974. From 1956, Rose was also headmistress of Clapton Jewish Day School, now known as Simon Marks Jewish Primary School.

The library was formally opened on 12 June 1975. The programme proudly announced: “The main lending library with 17,000 books is on the ground floor with a lounge area leading off it. The children’s library with 8,000 books is on the first floor, while in the basement the exhibition lobby leads to a reference room and a large archives and records store.”

At the Council’s Libraries and Amenities Committee meeting on 2 July 1975, the Borough Librarian reported an increase in the number of books borrowed at the new library, compared with the quantity borrowed during the same period from the Haggerston and Englefield Road Libraries that it had replaced.

But what was there before the library? The Archives’ oldest map of the area which shows a building on the site is Stanford’s 1862 Library

Map of London and its Suburbs. An earlier map of 1831 – Thomas Starling’s Plan of the Parish of St. John at Hackney – shows only fields where the building now stands. While Downham Road is shown on the map, De Beauvoir Road has not yet been created.

The map was produced at a time when the De Beauvoir estate was the subject of a protracted legal battle. The owner, Richard Benyon De Beauvoir, was deep in a dispute with William Rhodes, who had obtained a lease on the estate from the previous owner, the Rev. Peter Beauvoir, shortly before he died in 1821. The development of the estate, begun by Rhodes in the early 1820s, was largely on hold during the ten years or so of the legal battle, and was not begun again in earnest until after 1835, when Richard Benyon De Beauvoir gained control of the estate.

De Beauvoir Road was at least partly developed by the time of the 1851 census: the returns for that census, and for the next one in 1861, list some houses in De Beauvoir Road, but they are not yet identified by house number, so it is difficult to work out whether there is any building that corresponds to 43 De Beauvoir Road.

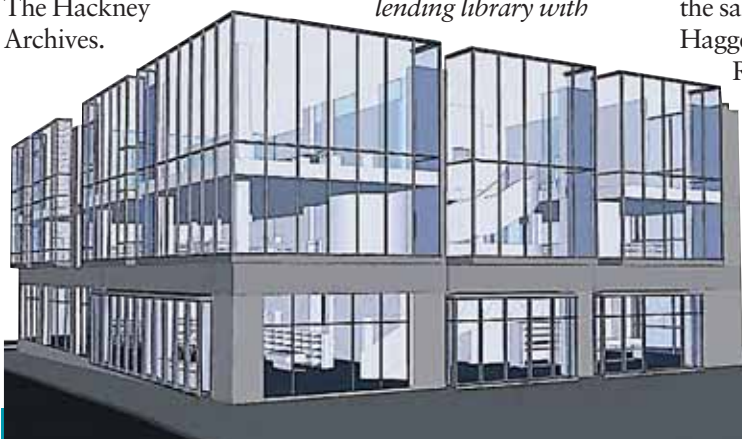

The earliest census in which number 43 can be identified as an address is that of 1871. An Ordnance survey map of 1871 shows a clearer outline of a building at this address than the earlier maps. A building of a very similar shape is still there on an Ordnance Survey map of 1961, but by 1971 the site had been cleared to make way for the De Beauvoir Estate.

So, after nearly 36 years, the Archives is leaving De Beauvoir Road. But the collections will all be available later in the year when the service re-opens in the new Dalston CLR James Library and Hackney Archives.

MORE INFO

i Hackney Archives looks after Council administrative records and archives dating back to 1700. It also keeps records for individuals and organisations with links to Hackney. # The Mayor and Councillors Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections were in May 2010.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

The Mayor

Jules Pipe

Hackney has an executive Mayor, Jules Pipe, who is not a councillor, but is directly elected by the entire borough. The Mayor is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of the Council who is elected annually from the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Sally Mulready.

Recipes straight from the ovens at Waterhouse

www.waterhouserestaurant.co.uk

THIS is the latest in a series of regular recipes courtesy of Waterhouse – an eco-friendly restaurant alongside the Regent's Canal in Shoreditch. Chef Owen Cool admits sourcing sustainable sea food can be problematic for any cook. With fish stocks plummeting and irresponsible fishing practices rife, it is hard to be confident the fish on your plate is not damaging the ocean's ecology. However, mussels are one genuinely guilt free piece of farmed seafood – they are low on the food chain and filter feed on the tiniest particles floating in the water. Ask your fishmonger for rope farmed mussels (not dredged), and as well as a tasty meal, you are actively encouraging an industry that actually helps to clean and filter our seas. What's more, mussels are cheap, delicious and easy to cook.

Mussels in white wine and cream

Serves two as a main or four as a starter

Ingredients

- 1 medium onion finely diced
- 2 cloves garlic finely sliced
- 200ml white wine
- 350ml double cream
- 1kg cleaned mussels in their shell *
- salt & pepper
- chopped parsley or tarragon to sprinkle

Method

- Sweat onion and garlic in a little oil for five mins or so. Cover with white wine and simmer until reduced by half
- Pour on the cream and again allow to reduce by half, then season with salt and pepper. Remove from the heat
- Get a pan very hot and throw in the mussels. Add a glug of liquid – fish stock, white wine, veg stock or just water – and cover. Cook for 4-5 minutes
- Check for unopened mussels, throw these away. Drain the liquid off, add it to the sauce and allow to warm through
- Share out between big bowls – pasta bowls work best. Sprinkle with the chopped herbs
- Serve with crusty white bread or chips

* It is very important to tap any mussels that are open and if they don't close, then throw them away. With a knife carefully remove the beards – strings of protein that mussels use to attach themselves to things – and any barnacles. Scrub gently and they're ready to be cooked

Waterhouse is a social enterprise that trains local people in the ethos of eco-friendly best practice in the restaurant industry. Owned by Shoreditch Trust, its profits go back into a regeneration programme for the local area.

Waterhouse in Orsman Road, N1, is open Monday to Friday from 9am to 5pm. For more info, visit: www.waterhouserestaurant.co.uk For bookings call: 020 7033 0123; or e-mail: eat@waterhouserestaurant.co.uk

Parking plans

IN early 2010, residents and businesses were consulted on the Council's Parking Enforcement Plan, which sets the agenda for parking policy in Hackney over the next four years. The plan has now been approved. It will mean solutions to the most important parking issues for residents can now be implemented. Many of the proposals have been made as a direct result of feedback.

Changes include:

- No price increase for single residents' parking permits
- Visitor vouchers that last two hours and a full day
- Established controlled parking zones reviewed approximately every five to seven years, as most areas don't need to be reviewed every three years
- Residents and businesses will be able to save money by applying for parking permits online or by post
- New permits for carers and social care charities.

The Council prosecutes people for misuse of Blue Badge parking permits for residents with disabilities. This year investigations into misuse of other permits and vouchers will also be carried out. Some policies come into force on 1 April, subject to a 21-day statutory consultation period when relevant. For info and to see the consultation feedback visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/PEP

TRANSFER OF NHS CITY AND HACKNEY COMMUNITY HEALTH SERVICES PATIENT RECORDS TO THE HOMERTON UNIVERSITY HOSPITAL FOUNDATION NHS TRUST

NHS City and Hackney has been working towards integrating its Community Health Services with Homerton University Hospital NHS Foundation Trust since March 2010, when NHS City and Hackney's Board voted in principle for Homerton to be the preferred provider for managing local community health services in future. It is intended that pending final approval by NHS City and Hackney Board the two Organisations will integrate on 1 April 2011.

In preparation for this patient health records will be transferred to the Homerton.

Paper records will not be physically moved as they will stay with the current Service and archived records will be scanned and held securely. This will not affect the treatment or care that you are currently receiving.

Under Section 10 of the Data Protection Act you have the right to request that the Homerton does not hold your personal information.

As the provider of Community services, it is important that we ensure the continuity of care and treatment for all our patients. Patients who do not wish for their records to be held by the Homerton should contact the Information Governance Manager or PALS at NHS City and Hackney to discuss this further. If you wish to opt out you need to inform us by 17 March 2011.
